

Assessment for Learning: Peer and self-evaluation

This is a practical presentation which focusses on developing students' ability to assess peers and ultimately be able to critically assess themselves. It will focus on the value of peer assessment and how it can be implemented within a classroom setting. It discusses how students can deliver feedback constructively while at the same time use the process to refine their own skills and accuracy in English. Moreover, the presentation hopes to transmit how motivating and dynamic peer assessment can be as well as its longer-term cognitive value.
